

INTERNATIONAL MODULES FOR EXCHANGE STUDENTS

University of Ostrava
Faculty of Medicine
Department of Rehabilitation

Student exchanges have become an essential and desirable part of university education nowadays. They provide a student with a chance to improve their knowledge and skills in their own subject as well as to compare intercultural differences in teaching, in an approach towards patients and in life conditions in general.

The Department of Rehabilitation offers, as part of the Erasmus+ program, clinical practical module for exchange students who are interested in studying at our university. This module is aimed at physiotherapy and occupational therapy students of a bachelor degree course. They will take place during the university winter term every year, i.e. from the second week of September to Christmas holiday. Exchange students will attend mostly practical lessons and some theoretical lessons at school together with other exchange students. Practical teaching will be provided in the departments at a hospital attended by small mixed student groups. The practical teaching is always under supervision of a university mentor. The list of subjects is given below. The module offer is always specified during the first week according to the actual timetable.

The module offers visits to various health facilities according to the student's interest and possibilities of the university.

We will have a practical placement in the departments at Ostrava hospitals (The University Hospital in Ostrava, The City Hospital Ostrava, Vitkovice Hospital). The student will learn all necessary information concerning subjects and credits from each teacher at the beginning of the winter term. Practical teaching will take place in different departments in hospitals under the supervision of a university teacher and a home student.
